

Geographic Information Systems Technology

A Geographic Information System (GIS) is a powerful combination of mapping technology and databases, that, when combined, may create an array of spatially arranged data on a map surface for detailed analysis. GIS may be employed for a variety of applications, including environmental, marketing, demographic and urban planning.

Degree Offered

The following degree is offered for this program at the Cooper campus:

Certificate in Geographic Information Systems Technology

bluegrass.kctcs.edu

