

The LRC Scholars on Campus Series presents:

“Readings and Random Musings” with Leif Rigney

Join your friends and colleagues for a reception and reading of selections from the writings of author Leif Rigney

“Leif Erickson Rigney’s father was drunk when he named him, but he claims to be happy to at least have a name that’s a good conversation starter. When he was an impressionable child of 12, he elected to ship off to an eccentric boarding school in the secluded foothills of eastern Kentucky, where he completed grades six through twelve. This explains a lot about him. He holds a BA in English from Georgetown College, an MA in English from Eastern Kentucky University, and an MFA in creative nonfiction from Murray State University. In the age-old tradition of surrounding oneself with those better looking, more talented, and smarter than oneself, he has been married for 12 years (to the same person) and has a 10-year-old daughter, both of whom are award-winning, talented visual artists. Rigney’s work has appeared in Quarter After Eight and Standing on the Mountain: Voices of Appalachia, and he currently has his fingers crossed that a few other editors will find themselves inebriated enough to publish him. When he is not writing, Rigney enjoys reading, writing, violating personal borders, acting, listening to Leonard Cohen, Tom Waits, and Van Morrison, and otherwise being a nerd.”
